Physical well-being and motor development:

Motor development means the physical growth and strengthening of child's bones, muscles and ability to move/feel his/her surroundings. We at our school religiously pursue the routine of exercises right from the Montessori. Various gross motor activities are integrated in their regular schedule because physical development is tied to others development areas also.

Cognitive development:

Cognitive development provides children with means of paying attention to thinking about the world around them. To build and enhance the cognitive development we encourage children to think, understand, imagine, solve experiments and learn in a continuous manner.

Personal, social and emotional development:

Personal, social and emotional development helps in making relationships self-confidence and self-awareness. A tremendous amount of social and emotional development takes place during early childhood. Emotional and social skills are essential for school readiness. At school, children learn to take turns, help their friends, play together and cooperate with others.

Development of creative and aesthetic expressions:

Creative and aesthetic expression encourages self-expression and decisions making. It develops confidence, language, physical and thinking skills, imagination and emotional understanding. To enhance creativity among Pre-schoolers various art and craft activities, music and visual arts and pretend play activities are included in the curriculum.

Hybrid learning:

Hybrid learning is a combination of face to face interaction and online learning along with parental involvement. As per the present situation, we at Bal Bharati Public School are fully equipped with smart interactive panels.
